The financial industry is increasingly plagued by scandals, ranging from accounting fraud to greenwashing. These incidents often expose structural weaknesses only after significant damage has occurred, sometimes leading to complete business collapse.

To prevent such outcomes, many companies implement a top-down approach focused on structural governance. However, this method can be challenging to enforce consistently and may overlook vulnerabilities within lower levels or specific departments, resulting in costly and complex administrative burdens.

The A&M's 360° Health Check comprehensive front-to-back approach addresses these issues by incorporating input from all management levels and the entire value chain, ensuring both value preservation and effective risk management.

Discover how the A&M Health Check aligns with clients' strategic growth objectives and delivers tangible benefits through enhanced risk mitigation and prevention measures.
